Exhibits Splendid Growing Grain

Mr. Noah Swain brought in some outstanding samples of growing grain to the Pioneer office Monday.

He exhibited samples of O.A.C. No. 21 Barley that measured 4 feet high; Trebi Barley soon on spring plowing and measuring 3 ft. 6 in. high; Garner wheat 3 ft. high; and Victory Oats 3 feet high. All the samples were headed out.

Mr. Swain stated that his grain headed out six days earlier this year than in 1932.

He took the samples to the camp meeting to show his visiting friends.

An American publisher has offered a large prize for the best essay on how to maintain world peace. No doubt there will be many competitors and several logical ideas will put forward—but has anybody thought of sending him a copy of the ten commandments?

Mountain View Council Meeting

The regular meeting of Mountain View municipal district council was held at Olds on Saturday last, with Rev. Flinn in the chair.

A resolution was passed that the council grant all discounts allowed by the tax consolidation act when taxes paid without consolidation. It was pointed out that under this arrangement it would be to the advantage of taxpayers to pay their taxes rather than consolidate.

Mr. Floyd Aldgrin was appointed weed inspector for the season.

The council accepted the resignation of Mr. E. D. Fagan as pounder and appointed his son Mr. Leo Fagan to the position.

The council was appointed as a committee to inspect and consider the opening of a road southeast of 32-33-28 w4M.

A Par-As-U-Pleas Tea & Pie Sale will be held at the home of Dr. Clarke next Saturday afternoon—July 15, under the auspices of Knox United Ladies Aid.

Mr. E. Bahr, who is taking over the charge of the Banff elevator, arrived Tuesday with his family from Riverdale, Sask. Mr. Bahr has been located at Banff for the past thirteen years and has had a lengthy experience as a grain buyer.

The Didsbury tennis players took part in a tennis tournament at Carstairs last Wednesday, but fell easy victims to the Olds club in the first round. Many of Didsbury's players were away on vacation, resulting in a rather weak representation.

Mr. H. M. Reiler, who has been visiting his old home in Ontario, returned home Sunday. He reports that crops in Ontario are good, but the prospects for crops in this district were the best he had seen west of the Great Lakes.

The Didsbury Canaries' softball club has arranged a game with the Melvin Go-Getters for Wednesday, July 19. They are selling tickets for the game and purchasers will participate in a drawing for a pure wool blanket. The proceeds from the sale of tickets will be utilized for paying the expenses of the club in the Junior Provincial Playoffs.

Wallace Berry and Jackie Cooper, stars of "The Big House," and "Skippy," unite to make "The Clamp," one of the great dramas of the season. Showing at the Opera House on Friday and Saturday July 14 and 15 at 8:15 p.m. Saturday matinee at 3 p.m.

The W.C.T.U. will hold a picnic for their members on Wednesday, July 19 at the Little Red Deer Bridge near Wm. Davies' place. Members are requested to meet at the Adshead Garage at 10 a.m., when transportation will be arranged.

Messrs. Lorne Fey and Bob Eubank returned from their vacation the beginning of the week. They motored through the Banff and Yoho National Parks and returned via the Crow's Nest. Lorne tells of climbing up in the snow on the mountains, but they were willing to quit before they reached the summit.

The W.C.T.U. will hold a picnic for the Little Red Deer Club members on Thursday, July 20th at 3 p.m. A program will be given by the children and a short talk by Mrs. Hallman to the mothers.

A special invitation is extended to mothers and children.

Mr. A. Bishop spent a couple of days last week in Drumheller and visited with friends there. He states that the farmers of Drumheller and district should consider themselves fortunate in having such good crops, as the grain he saw in the Drumheller district had suffered greatly from drought, while a large acreage had been burnt beyond recovery.

Mr. Bishop, who lived at Drumheller for quite a number of years also stated he had never seen conditions so bad in that district.

Boy Drowned In Lone Pine Creek

A particularly sad incident occurred in the Burnsides district Wednesday evening of last week, when Eric, my year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Marion was drowned in a deep pool on the Lone Pine creek.

The boy was last seen alive when he went to the house about 4 o'clock. As he did not come home for supper his parents became worried and began to make inquiries. A search was made, and the frantic barking of the boy's dog, which had accompanied him, attracted the attention of Mr. A. A. Dyer, who on making investigation found the boy's clothes on the bank of the creek, but could find no sign of the little fellow.

A large number of neighbors gathered and they dragged and searched the creek throughout the night without result. On Thursday morning a party from town went out to help in the search and about 11 o'clock Mr. John Eubank, who is an expert diver, found the body in about 12 feet of water.

It is thought that the boy had been playing on a raft which he found in the creek and had fallen from it into the deep water.

The funeral services were held at St. Stephen's Church, Olds on Saturday and the burial took place at the Didsbury cemetery.

A large number of neighbors and friends attended the funeral and there were many floral tributes.

Get Your Entries Ready for the Fair

The farmers who intend making entries in the agricultural fair on Wednesday, August 2 are now busy getting their stock ready for this exhibition.

That there will be a large exhibit of livestock was assured at the recent meeting of the directors, and it is expected that both quantity and quality of exhibits will keep up the reputation of Didsbury Fair.

The grains, grasses and garden stuff are well advanced and with some effort on the part of the members, entries in these classes should show a big increase over last year.

Get your entries ready and make the fair a big success.

CARD OF THANKS

To those who assisted in the search for the body of Eric throughout the awful night of July 19th and the day following, we thank from the bottom of our hearts, and trust that none of any ill effects from their long stay in the water, to those who were unable to swim, but assisted in every way they could to the women who endeavored to cheer and comfort us, and for the floral tributes and other evidences of sympathy we extend the same heartfelt gratitude. May we never forget.

World's Future At Stake

The World Economic Conference now meeting in London constitutes what is probably the greatest assemblage of nations ever convened in the history of the world. In its opening address, Premier Ramsay MacDonald declared: "There is greater authority gathered in this hall than has perhaps ever been brought under one roof in the world's history."

Sixty-seven nations are represented in this momentous conference, or a larger number of separate national units than most people had knowledge existed. But it is not alone the size of the gathering that makes it outstanding in importance among all great world economic conferences; rather it is the fact that, for the first time since the Great War, it is composed of Government plenipotentiaries with the power to act.

As one well known economic authority points out, there have been many economic conferences in the past ten years, but they were composed of experts who were called upon merely to advise, but without authority to commit their Governments. The present conference is quite different; it is made up of representatives of the Governments of all nations clothed with authority to reach definite agreements, thereby committing those Governments to exert their power and authority to secure ratification of such agreements by their various legislative bodies. There is, therefore, hope that definite action will result.

Whether such action does result depends, says the economic authority already quoted, upon the answer to a fundamental question. Will the Governments really turn their backs on the ideal of national self-sufficiency, and try to rebuild prosperity on a basis of interdependence and mutual benefit in international trade, even though that may involve a modification of their present national policies? If so, then there is no reason why the Conference should not be a great success. But, if not, there is little hope of preventing a drift into even greater depression, the ultimate outcome of which no man can foretell.

This is the crux of the whole matter, and discussing it in his opening address, Premier Ramsay MacDonald further said: "Have we come to deliberate and decide as though our respective nations were isolated units in the world? That we shall fail, and the world which looks on today with expectations of a new and better cup of disappointment. Have we no sense of the permanence of such a system as is dependent upon the permanent good of all, and determined to co-operate in coming to agreements which will make a renewal of prosperity possible?" Then we shall succeed, and expectations of the world will be justified. We must not fail."

And His Majesty the King in opening the conference sounded the key-note when in a stirring appeal he said: "In the face of a crisis which all realize and acknowledge, I appeal to you all to co-operate for the sake of the ultimate good of the whole world. It cannot be beyond the powers of man to use the vast resources of the world as to insure the material progress of civilization."

Surely it is inconceivable that the leading statesmen of the world, men clothed with all the responsibilities of government and whose very positions have made them fully cognizant of the underlying and fundamental causes of the world's present economic sickness, will be so nationally selfish, so neglectful of their own and their countries' responsibilities to the world at large, as to take such irreconcilable attitudes that the success of the conference will be wrecked.

President Roosevelt in his stirring pre-conference appeal to the sovereign heads of all nations stressed the terrible responsibility that would rest on any nation, or group of nations, which stood out against the rest of the world in their insistence upon narrow nationalistic and purely selfish policies. He realizes, as Premier Ramsay MacDonald realizes, and as all sane and sensible people must realize, that a purely national economic policy in this modern world is one which by impoverishing other nations, impoverishes those who pursue it. No nation can permanently enrich itself at the expense of others. Mutual enrichment is a condition of individual enrichment.

To quote Premier Ramsay MacDonald once again: "Nationalism in the sphere of politics may be essential to human freedom. Self-sufficient nationalism in economics is the dead knell of advancing prosperity." The nearer we can make the world an economic unit, the better will it be for each nation. In any event, international co-operation is our best way to national recovery, and the nation which looks after itself in an international fashion of mind will not only lead the world in enlightenment but in well-being.

Narrow nationalism must go. If it does not, the very nations which persist in it will themselves go—down in the crash and debacle of a destroyed civilization. The present World Economic Conference is a turning point in the life of the present generation. The hope and prayer of the teeming masses of the world's population is that their leaders will rise to the occasion, and courageously and energetically take the right road.

Power Of Imagination

"I'm shot," yelled a burglar when police cornered him in a New York grocery store. Amazed, the police writer, who had not fired a shot, watched him slump to the floor with what looked like blood covering his face. Drawing nearer, they guffawed. The doctor, approvingly: "Yes, that's right," replied the burglar. "Well, I've come back to ask you if I can take a bath now?"

Returned For Instructions

"You remember when you cured my rheumatism a couple of years ago?" asked the patient, "and you told me that I should avoid dampness?" "Yes, that's right," replied the doctor, "Well, I've come back to ask you if I can take a bath now?"

Would Only Benefit Few

Many People Would Suffer If Prices Unduly Increased

The United States and Europe are trying to combine so as to raise prices all round. If wheat were $10 per bushel and everything else up in proportion, would the world be in any better position than if wheat were $1 per bushel and everything else priced in proportion? If a man should die at seventy years of age and leave a wife fifty years of age with an income of $500 a year how could she get along when increased prices for necessities came upon her?

The widows, and men who have retired because of age, because of sickness, women who have saved enough to live modestly, the great array of children who are unfit for work, etc. The rise in price of lumber might help the woodmen, the increase in the price of steel might help the makers of steel and their products, but in going all around the social course it would crush perhaps any that it would lift up. This is especially true of country villages and towns, where there are more people living on small incomes in proportion to population than in larger places. If we talk of a national fund to help these people with small incomes, we complete the circle and arrive at the very place from which we started. We might just as well leave things as they are and let old supply and demand do the regulating of prices. —Port Ronan News.

Will the Governments really turn their backs on the ideal of national self-sufficiency, and try to rebuild prosperity on a basis of interdependence and mutual benefit in international trade, even though that may involve a modification of their present national policies? FRENCH Eat Less Bread
French is steadily declining, says Edmond Chais, president of the Touring Club of France. Once the world's champion bread-eaters with a daily per capita consumption of two pounds, the modern Frenchman consumes but one pound ten ounces. M. Chais blames the decline on the war, during which, he says, his countrymen became tired of poor quality bread.

A new record for Los Angeles in Canada, was established recently with the taking of one weighing 10 pounds 2 ounces in the Cypress Hills area, Saskatchewan, a weight several times that of the average for the species in Scotland, its original home.

Wild Cattle In England

Unique Herd Maintained On One Of Oldest Estates

It may surprise many people to know that there are wild cattle in England, yet there is an authentic herd, not running wild, but living on the estate of one of England's oldest peers, the Earl of Tankerville in Northumberland.

For centuries these animals have had their habitat on the Earl's woodland demesne of 700 acres, which is so stoutly enclosed by a stone wall that the breed has remained pure for upwards of five hundred years. There are just 44 of them, but as it costs quite a sum to feed and care for them without producing any return the Earl has been obliged to ask for some assistance in their maintenance. The Zoological Society has come forward, and the preservation of this unique herd is assured.

These cattle are pure white with red muzzles, and black tips to their upward turned horns. They are smaller than ordinary cows, extremely shy despite the fact that nobody ever seeks to touch them, and are dangerous to strangers.

It is said they are descendants of the aurochs, primitive wild oxen which were hunted in England by Roman soldiers when the Caesar held sway. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Wager Was Easily Won

New York Times Outwitted By Young Club Man

In the course of an argument among some of the younger members of the University Club, one of the group made an glorification that writing poetry was easy, so that he, although God knows no poet, could write a poem and get it printed. Moreover, he could get it printed in the New York Times. He had each with that said he could. Money to cover his wager bobbed up at once. Then with a little effort he wrote a poem anyway, he wrote eight lines that had some rhymes. The incorruptible Times came next. On that matter, he showed himself a young man of invention. First, he wrote a letter signed A.B.C., to the question-and-answer department of the paper's book section, asking if some reader could give the last four lines of the poem which began—and he quoted the first four lines of his poem, the Times ran. He immediately replied, signing A.B.C., giving X.Y.Z. the last four lines of the poem. The Times, never suspecting that, then, after some mild grumbling about instalment publication, he drew down his bet. —New Yorker.

Prize For Essay

Fellowship Amounting To $1,000 Offered For Best Essay On Economic Problems

A graduate fellowship, amounting to $1,000, is offered by the Royal Bank of Canada to the students of a Canadian university who writes the best essay on a Canadian economic problem.

The subjects for the papers to be submitted by March 1, 1934, are as follows:

An analysis of Canadian industry. The restoration of international movements of capital as a basis for an increased volume of trade.

The discussions and results of the world economic conference. The future of the export trade in Canadian agriculture.

Possible development of power-industry in eastern Canada.

Have Helped Greatly

Many newspapers have drawn the contrast and commented on the talk about there being a depression while at the same time picture shows are crowded. Picture shows have been the expression of the valuable things of the depression era, giving the people a chance to direct their minds and thoughts to something other than themselves and their own troubles.

May Not Affect Earth

Dr. Charles Abbott, the American astrophysicist, predicts that the sun will be colder for the next two years. This does not necessarily mean that the earth will have two cold years, as the temperature of the earth is affected by many influences besides solar radiation.

FAT MAN LOSES 63 lbs.

Kruschen and Walking

Overweight men who want to lose a few pounds can have the benefit of this man's experiences. He gives them to us for publication:

"In a little over twelve months I have lost 63 lbs. by taking doses of Kruschen Salts every morning for six months, and taking walking exercise every day. This remarkable achievement is the most interesting when one considers that I am not subject to any form of dieting." —G. L. B.

You can take off fat with Kruschen Salts if you will take one-half teaspoon in hot water every morning before breakfast to modify your diet, and exercise regularly.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. The old arm chair won't hold you any more if you'll want to be up and about. You'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top. You'll lose fat and probably live longer.

Ten Thousand-Foot Tower

French Engineer Proposes To Erect Marvel In Paris

An amazing hollow concrete tower nearly half a mile high, with a spiral motor road leading to a vast superstructure consisting of a garage for 400 cars, a dancing pavilion, a 1,000-seat restaurant, sun-parlor, weather office, and finally a tall slim aerial lighthouse.

This is the breath-taking project of a famous French constructional engineer, M. Eugene Freyssinet.

He proposes this skyscraper marvel, which would completely dwarf the present Eiffel Tower, as an attraction for the world exposition to be held in Paris in 1937.

Visitors would be able to drive their own cars to the clouds for lunch or dinner.

The spiral road would be four miles long and make thirty turns around the tower. It would be the only means of ascent or descent, for no lifts would be installed.

And M. Freyssinet is ready to build the tower up to a height of 10,000 feet, or nearly two miles, if the world exposition will finance it.

He estimates the cost at about two million dollars.

"Don't you think it will be marvelous on a hot day to jump into a motor car and drive up into the clouds, from where you will have a magnificent panorama of the entire Paris region?" he said.

First Canadian Movie

Filmed Under Direction Of Canadian Social Hygiene Council

The first Canadian motion picture produced in Hollywood and the first Hollywood picture to have a premiere in Canada has been placed in circulation. It is "Damaged Lives," the problem play, filmed under direction of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council. In its first week in Toronto it attracted 25,000 persons.

The picture soon will be shown throughout the British Empire. It has been booked for screening in England under sponsorship of the ministry of health. Its producers regard the film as probably the most extensive piece of public health education ever undertaken by means of talking motion picture.

Easily Distracted

A family in Pasadena, California, were at breakfast the other morning when they noticed a grown-up African honest looking in the window. The Associated Press news item adds that the family forgot breakfast. Some people allow anything to distract their attention.

cartridges till it was caught. Rising to one knee then, clasping the spade grip, he cautiously raised his eyes above his shelter.

The breed with the deadly Savage, who had sent three bullets into his body and had drilled Jimmy Montgomery through the heart, was trying to make it back to the flags. Shouting hoarsely, he kept jerking his head around to see what his enemy was doing. Alan swerved the Browning a few degrees, looked down the sights, and his trigger finger tightened. . . . The breed stumbled as that half of death caught him—stumbled and flung up his arms and pitched face-down in the ankle-deep water.

Releasing for a moment, Alan trained the Browning on that clump of flags where two rifles were still screaming at him; and when he had determined his concentration, the Browning went into play again.

Methodically, the gun drumming out its message of death, he sprayed the clump from end to end, spraying it with bullets, mowing down the flags, splattering the bands hiding with a raking, slow-waving fire.

There in the water a figure leaped up, bloodied tried to escape. Alan swung upon it, the figure vanished, there was a thrashing for a moment among the reeds. To the right a single rifle still held out, shooting at him. He located the spot and poured a storm of bullets into it. . . . With a shrill yell a small wiry man sprang up, flung his gun spasmodically into the air, doubled up limply and sank down in the flags and muck.

Alan stood up then. He thought to swim across and get one of those canoes and go after Joyce. But he had not the strength. The nausea was overpowering him again; his wounds had bled him weak, and the pain of them sickened him. Staggering from the fearful reaction setting in, he sat down on the swan nest, with his world swimming in front of him and all his senses reeling.

It was four days later that those who waited at Fort Endurance learned what had happened northeast in the Land of Many Waters.

One evening at sunset an airplane came swinging around the timbered headland down the Mackenzie. Flying low, just over the water, it veered in toward the steamer landing, touched lightly, skinned the wavelike, and sank down in the flags and muck.

Alan stood up then. He thought to swim across and get one of those canoes and go after Joyce. But he had not the strength. The nausea was overpowering him again; his wounds had bled him weak, and the pain of them sickened him. Staggering from the fearful reaction setting in, he sat down on the swan nest, with his world swimming in front of him and all his senses reeling.

"Alan! Alan! He's coming for you! Alan! Stop him! . . . Shoot him!"

In a vague way he realized that the triumph was his now, if his hands had strength to seize it. If only he could rise up, he could stand the Browning behind this nest and splitter every square inch of the bandit's covert. As he lay there, nearly helpless, fighting for one last flicker of strength to rise and use the machine gun, he heard Buzzard shouting at him across those seven hundred yards. He could not distinguish the frantic words; he thought Buzzard must be trying to hearten him to one more effort. But then heard Joyce's voice crying to him. Closer, silent with fear, the warning came to him clearly.

"Alan! Alan! He's coming for you! Alan! Stop him! . . . Shoot him!"

The panic and terror of his voice roused Alan. He understood that some peril was looming upon him from those bandits. With a great effort he rose to an elbow, drunk with pain, giddy from loss of blood. A few seconds later, he crept to an elbow and knees to the water edge and tayed his face and managed to tie a kerchief around his forehead wound.

The bandage stopped the blood from running down and blinding him; the cold shock of water drove the nausea away for a little time. Again he heard Joyce crying out to him, but now it was a cry indistinctly stricken.

He cautiously raised his head, and saw the peril that his two friends had tried to avert him from. The huge red-bearded leader had drawn his cold, pale, ugly face, and was coming across to put a bullet through his brain and seize the machine gun. Sinking back unseen, Alan drew his heavy automatic, slipped the trigger safety, and waited. A few moments later, with his enemy within a dozen paces, he suddenly reared up above the shelter, shooting as he rose.

The seven heavy bullets caught the bandit leader in the breast, knocked him over, killed him instantly.

Crouching down again behind that pile of willow sticks and reeds, Alan turned to the Browning. Methodically he spread the tripod and planted it firmly and clicked it into its mount. Very carefully he fed in a web of the freight that the launch carried—a machine gun and clutter of rifles, a half dozen bales of petry worth a small fortune each bale, shovels and corded packs, and five stout leather pouches sewn with rawhide in the pouches fashion with the mere sight of that cargo drew a gasp from the crowd and brought them edging up close.

Joyce had come with Buzzard in the plane. As she unsnapped her safety belt and stood up, she was remembering her last time here at Endurance, when her father was still alive. It seemed a harsh irony of fate that he had died just when his innocence had been proved. Small comfort to know that his name and memory were cleared of guilt. As she thought of him lying dead at Resurrection and the tragic duty calling her there, she was glad that a steamer was coming past and she would leave this nest.

By the time she and Buzzard had skinned ashore, Alan had stepped out upon the planking. In another mo-

"Joyce, if you have time tonight, step over to my study and visit me, won't you?"

"Why yes, Father Claverly, if you wish. I'd better come before ten; the steamer may be here any time after that."

"You're leaving tonight?"

"Yes. There'll be no other for two weeks. Bill told me I'm going back to Ottawa."

Father Claverly nodded, and a little afterwards left her.

Joyce was deadly serious in her last words to Alan.

"You'll not forget what we talked over—the Inconam trap?"

"I'll not forget. But he may not walk into it. Joyce, he's shrewd, he's careful."

"You can be shrewd, Alan! You can make him walk into it. Let him think you've got him beaten and hopeless. Hide what you feel. And don't antagonize Superintendent Williamson."

Buy Edison's Home

Henry Ford Moving Home From Ontario To Michigan

The childhood home of the world-famous inventor, Thomas Alva Edison, at the village of Vienna, near St. Thomas, Ont., has been purchased by Henry Ford and will be removed and re-erected in the Ford historical settlement at Dearborn, Mich., it was reported. Mr. Ford, a friend of the inventor, inspected the property. The house in which the late Mr. Edison spent his boyhood summers was built by his grandfather, Capt. Samuel Edison.

While in Vienna, Mr. Henry Ford and party had supper at the Vienna Hotel, part of which is said to be one hundred years old. The outside walls of this part are made of one-inch lumber, six inches wide, piled one upon the other.

Many stories are told by old residents of times in the old hotel in lumbering days and open bars, when liquor flowed freely and argonauts were often settled by a fight, one of which, it is said, ended in the death of a man.

The hotel is now owned and operated by W. C. McDonald, who, while working in the ground around the house, has dug up a number of interesting old coins.

Russian Peasants Beware of Food Shortage Is Acute

Malcolm Muggeridge, writing in the Fortnightly Review, says, the struggle for bread in Russia has now reached an acute stage. All other questions are superfluous. It is war between the Government and the peasants, and this year's spring sowing will be a—perhaps the decisive battle.

The division commander was visibly hurt by Alan's words. His eyes were taking in the recovered loot, the tired men, Alan's wounds.

"I see you won out against those men. The prisoner, I suppose, is one of them. Where are the others?"

"Over in the Thal-Azaz. We did not take the trouble to give them a decent burial."

"Dead?"

"Yes, dead. It was a fair fight, if you care to take my word for it."

Williamson was silent a few moments. Into his eyes came a far-away expression, as though he was thinking of renowned patrols in the history of the Force and realizing that Baker's victory over these six criminals was one of them and one of the best of them. Finally he requested:

"Won't you come up to the cabin, Baker? I'd like to hear your report on this."

"I'll come up." Alan sent an ominous glance at Haskell. "I've got several things to say to you, superintendent."

Joyce felt some one touching her arm. Turning, she saw it was Father Claverly.

As he shook hands he asked her,

A vexation arises, and our expressions of impatience hinder others from taking it patiently. We say an unkind thing and another is hindered in learning the holy lesson of charity that thinketh no evil. How sadly too we may hinder without word or act. For wrong feeling is more infectious than wrong doing, especially the various phases of ill-temper, gloominess, touchiness, discontent or irritability, do we not know how catching these are?—F. R. Preserving Old Names

Historical Associations Lightly Regarded By Modern World

Without the vegetation for the old names of streets, cities and counties, some of the members of the House of Commons sought to change the names of the electoral ridings during the debates of the gerrymandering committee. In Nova Scotia three counties were to be called "Evangeline," a name famous by the poet Longfellow. At one time there was Victoria, British Columbia, a street called "Bird cage walk," perhaps the most charming thoroughfare in the Capital. Along came the roughneck brigadiers and transformed it into Government Street. We may data our lineage back to Adam, but there are many who would say a descent rather than an ascent in culture. Preservation of old names is akin to some regard for the historical and the memorial—Sherbrooke Record.

One Big Advantage

The one crop farmer, who buys all his food at the village grocery and turns his farm into a kind of factory for the production of one staple commodity, is specially vulnerable to any depression. The farmer who raises his own food is at least sure that he will never go hungry. And that, in times like these through which we have been passing, is an assurance worth having.

Ensures Freshness

A trawler is operated in the southern waters of France on which fish are frozen alive after being caught. The fish are then kept at a uniform temperature of over 20 degrees below zero, so that they can be transported without losing their freshness.

RUGBY NOTES

On Thursday, July 6th, members and friends of the Rugby W.I. gathered for a social afternoon at the hospitable home of the secretary, Mrs. James Hosgood. After a short business session, during which Mr. George Young was appointed delegate at the district convention at Cardston on July 26, there followed a social hour. Miss Jean Robertson gave a delightful piano solo, followed by an entertaining travolgue by Mrs. Ed. Parker, who gave an account of a motor trip from Kingston, Ont., through the maritime provinces and the eastern states. Friends were pleased to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Parker back to Didsbury. We were then favored with a piano solo and encore by Mary Robertson. The hostess provided an amusing and instructive contest, in which Mrs. Farrant Mrs. Penzton and Mrs. Clarke tied as winners. The flowers and lawn attracted many admiring. Lunch was served to about fifty guests, and all departed, voting the afternoon both successful and enjoyable.

—Mrs. John E. Clarke.

While enroute they found fair crops to the north; fair to very good in the Canmore district; very badly dried around Alsask, but better in the Drumheller district.

Westcott Notes.

The Westcott W.I. met at the home of Mrs. J. Hughes on June 29, with a goodly number present, though the roads were in a slippery condition. The meeting was opened with the singing of "O Canada," followed by the repetition of the Creed. It was decided to hold a picnic at Vogel's picnic grounds on July 22, everyone being welcome. Ladies please bring lunch baskets. Other business transacted included the decision to renew the institute's subscription to the League of Nations paper, also a decision to hold a dry-cleaning course in August. Mrs. Hosgood gave an interesting talk, which was followed by a contest. The meeting adjourned with the singing of "God Save the King" and funds was served by the hostess. In view of the picnic there will be no dry-cleaning course.

Mountain View Notes

A sewing course will be held at Community Hall on July 13, 14, 15. All ladies are welcome. Bring goods, thread and scissors.

The annual picnic took place last Friday and proved a success both socially and financially. The sum of $32.00 was realized from the booth and the raffling of a quilt, the lucky ticketholder being Tom Pearson. Two baseball games were staged, Didsbury High beating Long Pine and Community Hall beating Didsbury High. The day's proceedings ended with a well attended dance. Several ladies of the W.I. worked hard to make the event a success.

Bowden Wins 6-4 Over Didsbury

In a Rosedale League fixture at Didsbury on Saturday night, with Bowden as visitors, Didsbury again suffered defeat by a 6-4 score.

The home-sters took the Goliathians almost half of their regular team, and it spoke well for the side that it was only two goals in arrears at the half-way stage, Bowden leading by 4-2. Up to this period Bowden were much superior in both attack and defense.

The second half saw Didsbury with a re-arranged team, have more of their share of the attack, and two further goals were added, while the visitors again increased their lead with two more counters. There was no further scoring and the game ended in semi-darkness with the score: Didsbury 4, Bowden 6. Didsbury's first goal came from Prew, the ball going in off a Bowden defender, while Didsbury returned the compliment by presenting the visitors with two similar goals. The home-sters' other goals came from the toes of Steele.

After the game the Didsbury team held a meeting at the club's headquarters over the Pioneer office, when it was decided to disband the club owing to the difficulty of obtaining a permanent team under present conditions. The secretary reported that the cash in hand would just cover the practically negligible indebtedness of the club, and the thought that if in future there was to be any football in Didsbury, the building up of a team would depend largely on talent that might be developed from the youth of the town, with a possible quota from the surrounding districts; otherwise a successful team could not be organized.

The club wishes to thank those who have helped in many ways, with donations, transportation, etc., to thank the players, who have given of their best at all times, especially those veteran players who have helped fill the breach on various occasions, and for the support accorded the club.
